INSPIRATION FROM OUR DESIGNER

This year's Land and Meaning tea towels are inspired by, and honour, Australian First Nations peoples' relationship to Country.

The place names and their meanings are set in varying font widths and weights, with shifting kerning and tracking, to mirror the changing landscape across the Australian continent and Tasmania that First Nations peoples call Country. Each place name was chosen, along with its meaning, so that when read aloud the list carries a rhythm and evokes First Nations history on Country.

The colours also honour First Nations peoples: the ochres of the earth and the silvery green of the eucalyptus leaf that is so characteristic of the Australian landscape.

Through this work, I wish to express my deep gratitude to First Nations Elders, past and present, for their Welcome to Country. I also hope that the Uluru Statement from the Heart will be remembered by all Australians, so that one day we may walk together to build a better future for all.
